National Youth Sports Safety Month

April is National Youth Sports Safety Month, a month dedicated to helping raise awareness of sports injuries in kids while also helping parents, coaches and student athletes learn how to avoid injuries.

About 1.24 million kids receive emergency room care for sports-related injuries each year in the U.S. - that's 3,400 kids each day - and about 90% of student athletes say they've been injured while playing a sport. Many of those injuries can be quite serious, interfering not just with the child's ability to play sports, but also with their future development and well-being.

Learn how to keep children safe while participating in sports at <https://safekids.org/sports>.
